

402 - International, Area, Region Organization

After 1958 the Canadian Regions, which previously had reported directly to the International Office, reported to one of the International Vice-Presidents (either Eastern Americas or Western Americas). When the International Constitution was revised in 1974 Canada became one of the now eight selfgoverning Areas, with an Area President (then International Vice-President) reporting directly to the International President. The four Canadian Regional Directors now report to the Area President.

Under the new structure a slate of Area officers was established, an Area Constitution was formed, and a structure of ASD's was developed for each major service area.

On November 25, 2023, Notice of Motion approved at Area Council now sent to ACM via email:

I move that the Area Constitution Article VII - Finance, Section II be amended to read "Each Region shall collect all International, Area and Regional dues on a semi-annual basis and remit International dues to International Headquarters directly and Area Dues to Area Treasurer.

This motion if accepted will affect financial routing from Region to International.
